

Network Infrastructure

Local Area Network

The local area network, or LAN, is the foundation for every business computing environment. The LAN can be a serious investment, and designing and implementing it correctly is a challenge. This is especially true now that most companies want to leverage their network for multiservice applications (voice+video+storage+data). Eventis helps our customers with serious experience and unmatched expertise for all segments of the network lifecycle.

Cisco AVVID

Cisco Systems has developed the Architecture for Voice, Video and Integrated Data (AVVID) to help companies plan and implement their campus networks so they are ready for convergence. Eventis is one of the nation's leading integrators of Cisco AVVID networks.

Wide Area Network

Connecting your sites over a wide area network, or WAN, is a process filled with choices. Selecting WAN technologies, protocols and service providers can lock a company into a way of doing things for years. Leveraging the WAN investment for productivity and cost are essential. Eventis, while also a service provider, can help your company design the best overall system for multi-site connectivity no matter which carriers you use.

Wireless LAN

Wireless LANs using WiFi are a necessary and very handy component of campus networks. Ensuring that your WiFi system is secure and performs correctly can be tricky. Eventis helps design and implement WiFi networks that make sense.

Security

Security is essential to today's enterprise networks. Eventis provides state-of-the-art network security design and implementation that create barriers to intrusion, the ability to intercept and negate attacks, and ensure quick recovery.

Professional Services

Eventis designs and installs world-class networks. We help our clients get the most out of their investments. With Eventis at your side, projects move off the to-do list and into production.
